How to contribute as an expert or delivery partner

Expert and partner guide · WE Alliance · Conversations That Count

Expertise involved

- Psychologists, counsellors and other registered mental health professionals
- Coaches and facilitators in leadership, resilience and performance
- Occupational health and safety professionals
- Financial wellbeing, family and business-continuity specialists
- Sector specialists, for example in healthcare, agriculture or education
- Delivery partners: venues, event production, accessibility support and online platforms

Facilitation responsibilities

Prepare with the host on the audience and theme; lead a constructive, practical, non-clinical discussion; keep the conversation free of sales activity; share useful take-home resources.

Safeguarding expectations

Work within your professional scope and registration. Know local crisis and referral services before each session. Explain the confidentiality rules and their limits at the start. Report concerns privately — never in sponsor reports. These conversations are not therapy and must not be presented as such.

Coordination

Pamumvuri coordinates the programme and logistics. The host owns the invitation and welcome. The sponsor funds the series but doesn't direct what you say.

How registrations are reviewed

Register interest → review of expertise, credentials and registration → short conversation → matching to a suitable series → written agreement of scope, expectations and any fees.

Registering doesn't guarantee work, paid engagements or WE Alliance membership.
